Wheat is scarce in all sections of the country, yet the bears continue to claim that there is more of this grain on the farms and in country elevators than the bulls care to acknowledge.

A New York message said there were more inquiries in that market for wheat to-day than since the early part of March, when a heavy business was done every day, and that foreigners were buyers of July and September, which partly explained the strength in the September future. There were no cash sales here to-day.
